Understanding the Concept of 'Rent In Advance'

To explain rent in advance: Simply rent in advance means that you purchase your portion of time up front and then consume it (by residing in the property/remaining in possession)

If you go into a shop to buy items, you purchase it first then consume the items. You don't get it from the shelf, consume it first and then pay for it! Therefore rent is paid in advance before the time period is consumed. Once the time period is used, you must pay again in advance to use the new time period.

The 2 weeks 'rent in advance' you pay before taking possession is not held in trust like a bond payment but is used by you.
